

Collective tests at Hungaroring the 15th and the 16th of June

The 50 drivers of Formula Regional and Formula 4 championships together for the collective tests on the Hungarian track

Rome, 12 June 2019 – Saturday 15th and Sunday 16th of June the almost 20 teams involved in the Formula Regional European Championship certified by FIA and in the Italian Formula 4 Championship powered by Abarth will bring a total of around 50 drivers on the Hungaroring track in Mogyoród, Hungary, for the collective tests in preparation for the next racing weekend, taking place the 6th and 7th of July.

The tests for the two championships will be held together once more to facilitate the logistics of the many teams involved in both series.

Among the 50 drivers who will participate to the test also some new faces, ready for the debut in the series on the Hungarian track.

A very important occasion, so, to improve the preparation of cars and drivers who will be involved in the official races on the Hungarian track on the weekend of 6th-7th of July. The great participation to the event reflects the great competition of these two championships, that together represent the first two steps in the path that brings from karting to F1, in a professional way and with FIA certification.
